for the "Des Usines et des Hommes" exhibition

Paris, September 15 2015 - Mersen (Euronext FR0000039620 – MRN), global expert in electrical specialties and graphite-based materials, announced that it was one of the 35 French companies chosen by the METI - Mouvement des Entreprises de Taille Intermédiaire (confederation of Mid-Cap Companies) to participate in the "Des Usines et des Hommes"¹ photography exhibition on French industrial expertise.

This exhibition, which opened last night at the Petit Palais in Paris, honors 35 innovative French champions and market leaders, who are both drivers of our national economy and a showcase of success across the globe.

The photographer Thierry Bouët (Studio Harcourt, Vanity Fair, Libération...) was invited to capture moments in everyday industrial life on the Mersen La Mure site (France). This industrial site is dedicated to the design and production of cooling devices for the rail, electronics and renewable energies markets.

The exhibition will be advertised on 1,500 billboards throughout France during October and November. Parisians can also see the exhibition on the Berges de Seine (opposite the archipels - Port du Gros Caillou) from 15 September to 4 October 2015.
